To Whom it May Concern:

As an interior designer, I've worked with many contractors on high-end residential construction projects and for close to twenty years, I've worked with Jim Gerold, of Gerold Brothers.

Based on my experience in the industry, I'm able to see when contractors are being truthful with their clients and when they are or aren't providing the quality product and service a homeowner is paying for.

A construction project can be long, stressful, and very expensive. Jim's ability to provide a solid, reliable, competent, and quality product, in addition to excellent service, is a winning combination.

In addition to Jim's impeccable work ethic, his personal manner puts one at ease, making Gerold Brothers a pleasure to work with.
