

To Whom It May Concern:

Back in 1997, when we were about to build our first home, we interviewed many contractors. Along the way, we also had the opportunity to speak with many sub-contractors. The overwhelming majority of them told us that if we wanted the best house, we should speak to Jim Gerold of Gerold Bros.

Jim built that house for us, and has been our go-to expert and savior on several other projects since. His knowledge and experience, as well as his ongoing efforts to stay current with the newer building materials and practices have been invaluable. His millwork shop produces some of the finest products imaginable, and the carpentry work on site is flawless.

Often, when checking a reference on someone, we will ask, "Would you hire him again?"

We would.

We did.

Thanks, Jim...for the many years of great work!
